Conferences, Demonstrations Closed As First Move Against Soviet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Army spokesmen asserted today that continued restrictions on the activity of Americans in the Soviet Union will bring further crack-downs on Russian reporters and military attaches in the United States.

No official orders to impose restrictions were issued by the Army, the Navy or the Air Force.

Questioning of press officials in the services indicates clearly, however, that the old policy of opening all conferences and demonstrations to all comers is definitely gone.

An Army spokesman said that Soviet newsmen and military attaches are being restricted in the United States largely because American representatives in Russia are closely confined. He said:

"It's all a matter of reciprocity. They never allow us to attend their demonstrations, so we don't let them come to ours."

A case in point was last week's annual ordnance show at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. Representatives from Tass, the Soviet news agency, were conspicuous by their absence. The year before 10 Russians attended as Tass reporters.

Adkins-Renick Willing To Submit Fee Issue To Special Board

City council had under consideration, Wednesday, an offer from Attorney Joseph W. Adkins and Tom A. Renick to compromise their $20,000 bill for legal services in connection with litigation pertaining to the purchase by the municipality of the properties of the Ohio Water Service company.

THE OFFER was in the form of a letter signed by the two lawyers and read by Clerk Nicholas at Tuesday night's council meeting. Council voted to refer the proposal to council as a committee of the whole and John C. Goeller, president, named Councilman John Eshelman as chairman.

Attorneys Adkins and Renick suggested the naming of a special committee of three citizens, one to be named by one to be chosen by the council, and those two to select the third. The lawyers stipulated that this committee of three should fix the fee to be paid to Attorneys Adkins and Renick by the city and that such decision should be binding on both the two attorneys and the city. The letter stipulated that if the compromise offer is not accepted by the city council within a reasonable time it will be withdrawn.

Attorneys Adkins and Renick submitted their bill to the city several months ago.

IN THE compromise offer letter, the lawyers said "one of your members is attempting to influence you, as well as the public, to the view that we should not be paid just compensation. His conduct has been a deliberate and calculated attempt to discredit us with the public."

The letter cited that the Ohio Water Service company asked $550,000, and that as a result of the long hard work of the lawyers the city finally was able to buy the property for $420,000.

SOLONS PROMISE INQUIRY INTO MEAT PACKING

DENVER, Oct. 8—A congressional sub-committee investigating living costs, promised in Denver today to study the meat packing industry, after hearing a comparison of prices from a labor representative.

U. S. Senator Arthur V. Watkins, (R), Utah, chairman of the western sub-committee, said the group would study further suggestions made by Robert O'zanne, director of education and research for the Colorado State Federation of Labor, AFL. O'zanne told the committee yesterday that farmers are receiving 77 per cent more for cattle than they did in June 1946, before OPA controls were removed.

He declared that packing houses are receiving 130 per cent more for finished meat carcasses, while retailers are getting 97 per cent more.

Earlier, the committee heard Joseph Pepper, Denver meat packer, testify that the packing industry's profit margin has declined the last year because of increased costs.

Board Also Decides To Call For New Bids On Fire Alarm System

Four members of the city council voiced opposition following the second reading, at Tuesday night's council session, of an ordinance which provides for the city's acceptance of a "veterans' homesite" addition to the city of Circleville.

The council, following lengthy discussion of the proposed restoration of the 25-box fire alarm system which council ordered abandoned and removed several months ago, voted unanimously to have new specifications drawn and new bids advertised for, and also authorized Safety Director Thurman I. Miller to have James P. Moffitt, local electrician, start work at once on repairs to the alarm boxes.

The ordinance accepting the Chamber of Commerce addition, situated just west of South Court street at the edge of the city, was given its second reading by Clerk Fred Nicholas.

COUNCILMAN Ray Cook arose and declared "I am not going to vote for anything to subsidize real estate interests."

Councilman John Eshelman commented: "I don't see how we can accept any more additions to our present financial condition."

Councilman George L. Crites said: "I don't believe the city should do anything about this until we have definite information as to the sewer and water program in this addition."

Councilman Ray Anderson remarked: "This whole thing looks screwy to me."

Utilities Manager Ervin F. Leist submitted to council a written report of an inspection made Oct. 3 by himself and Leonard S. Lytle, local electrician, of the outside overhead wiring of the fire alarm system. The report said the length of wire proposed to be removed and replaced was 55,408 feet, the equivalent of 10.68 miles and that no charge would be made for the removal of the wire. It was cited that the council ordered the inspection to determine the footage necessary to be replaced.

The report also said that any relocation of alarm boxes which might be desired by Fire Chief Talmer Wise and which does not necessitate the use of additional material would be done at no additional cost to the city.

SUPREME COURT SETS DATE FOR KILLERS' DEATHS

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 8—The state supreme court refused today to admit the appeals of two Cleveland murderers and fixed Oct. 29 as the date of their execution in the electric chair. The condemned men were James Griffen, Jr., and Robert Britton, found guilty of killing Henry Lee Webb in a dice game robbery June 21, 1946.

Charged with them was Floyd Dace, who demanded a separate trial. Dace also was convicted and his appeal from a death sentence now is pending in the Eighth district appellate court.

Supersonic Robot Plane Roars Up On Initial Test Hop In England

ST. EVAL AIRPORT, CORNWALL, Eng., Oct. 8—Britain's first supersonic robot plane was launched today on its initial flight in an effort to attain speeds greater than sound.

Directors of the experiment expressed conviction that the test was successful although they did not immediately say what speed the craft attained.

Propelled by rocket power, the robot was slung beneath a Mosquito plane which took off from St. Eval airport early this afternoon.

When Squadron Leader D. A. C. Butt attained a height of seven miles above the Atlantic, he launched the rocket which promptly nosed downward in a glide, then straightened out at a height of about five miles and headed out to sea.

Arthur Butler, a civilian pilot, witnessed the rocket-launching from his jet-propelled plane which flew beside the mother-ship. He said he did not think his camera-guns, which he had trained on the rocket, were able to follow the robot as its initial dive was too steep.

He radioed to ground observers:

"THE ROCKET was successfully launched."

"It is in a glide."

"It is dropping. It is going straight down."

"The motors are now stopped. It is continuing its successful downward flight."

Then Butler reported that the rocket had gone out of sight.

Before reporting that he was returning to his base, Butler radioed that his windshield was frozen over from the tremendous altitude.

Scientists and technicians had worked since dawn under strict security conditions preparing for the flight.

$350,000 FIRE AT CHILLICOTHE LAID TO CHILD

CHILLICOTHE, O., Oct. 8—The $350,000 fire that destroyed St. Peter's Roman Catholic church at Chillicothe last June was laid today to a 13-year-old girl's pleasure at "seeing the candles burn."

Full Weight Of American Delegation Behind Move For Quick Action

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 8—The United States decided today to seek a showdown with Soviet Russia in the United Nations on Korea.

The U. S. delegation is preparing a resolution calling on the general assembly for early steps to assure its independence.

The American resolution is sponsored by Secretary of State George C. Marshall personally.

It will be undertaken within a few days in the 57-nation political and security committee.

Establishment of a provisional Korean government, elections, and withdrawal of Russian and American troops under U. N. auspices provide the main clauses.

The full weight of American delegation efforts will be put behind the resolution to get action before the general assembly concludes current sessions.

Bitter Soviet opposition is anticipated.

The lengthy speech Monday of Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky in the political and security committee and that of fiery Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia in the closing stage of the general debate on Greece yesterday are viewed by western delegations as initial shots in the expected propaganda drive of the Soviet bloc.

The closing debate on Greece in the political committee was a spectacle of vituperation and defiance of the chair on the part of Bebler, who drew the chairman's ire on himself three times.

Britain's Hector McNeil tapped Bebler with a final rebuke by requesting the floor to answer "the calculated abuse and intolerable excesses" hurled at the British government.

But for the sake of expediency, he acceded to the chairman's request and waived his right to speak.

GAS AND OIL FUEL OUTLOOK PAINTED BLACK

CLEVELAND, Oct. 8—Max W. Ball, director of the oil and gas division, U. S. department of the interior, today painted a dismal picture of this Winter's fuel outlook for Americans.

Speaking before the American Gas Association convention in Cleveland, Ball warned that the nation will "face a Winter of concern" because of shortages in supplies of gas, coal and fuel oils.

He told gasmen their problem would be:

"Spreading the inadequate supplies to do the most good, curtailing where curtailment will do the least harm, manufacturing as much gas as possible to meet your peaks and selling it at less than the cost of manufacturing, and praying that the Winter will be mild so that the people in your care will not suffer too much hardship."

Three per cent municipal tax on amusements loomed Wednesday as a probability in Circleville.

The city council in session Tuesday night instructed City Solicitor George Gerhardt to prepare such an ordinance and to present it for action at the next council meeting scheduled for Oct. 21.

During the discussion preceding this action members of council cited the city's need for more revenues and it was emphasized that during recent weeks several Ohio cities have passed ordinances authorizing imposition of a municipal amusement tax.

Solicitor Gerhardt told council he was awaiting for complete data from the Columbus legal department as to the precise provisions of the tax ordinance in that city. He mentioned that the Lancaster city council recently rejected a similar ordinance.

IN THE discussion it was indicated that the three per cent tax would be imposed on the revenues of theaters, dances, bowling alleys and skating rinks.

Councilman George L. Crites calculated that in the event the ordinance is passed the city will gain between $3,000 and $4,000 annually in income.

The motion to instruct Solicitor Gerhardt to draft the ordinance was offered by Councilman William M. Reid and it was seconded by Councilman Ray Cook. The vote on the motion was unanimous. All members of council were present with the exception of Robert E. Adkins.

The Army spokesman said that the ban applies to Yugoslavian and Polish representatives as well.

THE AIR Force, whose public relations setup has been closely linked to the Army until the recent service divorce, follows the same policy.

A NAVY public relations officer said that Navy news conferences are open to all nations, but that official trips of "junkets" are confined to U. S. reporters. Each foreign request for information is viewed on its own merits, he said.

DeMoss contended that he contracted for a new car Aug. 29, 1945, and paid $50 down to the company. On Oct. 11 of last year, he sued for "specific performance" of the contract.

ORIENT DRIVER ASKS NEW TRAFFIC TRIAL

Haldy Winfough, 70, Orient, found guilty Wednesday on a reckless driving charge following a hearing before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Evedand in Circleville, immediately filed a motion for a new trial. He had waived trial by jury.

The charge against Winfough was filed by State Highway Patrolman Clyde E. Wells as an aftermath of a two-car-head-on collision last March 13 on State Route 62 near Harrisburg. In the crash Winfough and eight other persons were injured. Winfough was reportedly attempting to pass a truck when his car collided with an auto operated by Mark Payne, 32, Cincinnati.

MOVE MADE TO PREVENT STRIKE AT SIEBERLING

AKRON, O., Oct. 8—An attempt was made today to prevent a general strike at the Seiberling Rubber Company plant in nearby Barborton.

Approximately 200 employees of the tire building department have been off their jobs since last Thursday, and last night nearly 100 workers in the band-room were reported on a sit-down strike.

W. S. Hackenberg, president of local 18, CIO-United Rubber Workers union, said that the workers' grievance was based on a notice by the company that it would pay only 90 per cent of the usual rate for lost time, such as that caused by lack of stock or similar reasons.

Hackenberg also charged that the company had locked out the employees, but this was denied by a company spokesman, who said that only a notice was posted stating "unless you intend to go to work, you are requested by the company not to enter the plant."

A continuation of the dispute threatens the layoff of all of the approximately 2,000 workers in the plant.

DOROTHY B. PENNINGTON FILES DIVORCE ACTION

Mrs. Dorothy B. Pennington filed suit for divorce in Pickaway county common pleas court, Tuesday, accusing Willard Pennington of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. She also seeks alimony and the custody of their three minor children, James W., 3, Larry L., 5, and Joyce Anne, 8. Judge William D. Radcliff granted a temporary injunction restraining Mr. Pennington from disposing of certain property during the pendency of the suit.

The petition recites the marriage took place Aug. 26, 1939 in Circleville. Mrs. Pennington alleges that on Oct. 4 her husband kicked her and knocked her to the floor and that on Oct. 6 she took the children with her and sought refuge in her father's home in Pickaway county.

WORDS OF THE WISE

The most agreeable of all companions is a simple, frank man, without any high pretensions to an oppressive greatness; one who loves life, and understands the use of it. For such a one, we would gladly exchange the greatest genius, the most brilliant wit, the profoundest thinker.

Entireness, illimitableness, is indispensable to faith. What we believe we must believe wholly and without reserve. A faith that sets bounds to itself, that will believe so much and no more, that will trust thus far and no further, is none.

Haldy Winfough, 70, Orient, found guilty Wednesday on a reckless driving charge following a hearing before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland in Circleville, immediately filed a motion for a new trial. He had waived trial by jury.

The charge against Winfough was filed by State Highway Patrolman Clyde E. Wells as an aftermath of a two-car-head-on collision last March 13 on State Route 62 near Harrisburg. In the crash Winfough and eight other persons were injured. Winfough was reportedly attempting to pass a truck when his car collided with an auto operated by Mark Payne, 32, Cincinnati.

MOVE MADE TO PREVENT STRIKE AT SIEBERLING

AKRON, O., Oct. 8—An attempt was made today to prevent a general strike at the Sieberling Rubber Company plant in nearby Barberton.

Approximately 200 employees of the tire building department have been off their jobs since last Thursday, and last night nearly 100 workers in the band-room were reported on a sit-down strike.

W. S. Hackenberg, president of local 18, CIO-United Rubber Workers union, said that the workers' grievance was based on a notice by the company that it would pay only 90 per cent of the usual rate for lost time, such as that caused by lack of stock or similar reasons.

Hackenberg also charged that the company had locked out the employees, but this was denied by a company spokesman, who said that only a notice was posted stating "unless you intend to go to work, you are requested by the company not to enter the plant."

A continuation of the dispute threatens the layoff of all of the approximately 2,000 workers in the plant.

DOROTHY B. PENNINGTON FILES DIVORCE ACTION

Mrs. Dorothy B. Pennington filed suit for divorce in Pickaway county common pleas court, Tuesday, accusing Wilard Pennington of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. She also seeks alimony and the custody of their three minor children, James W., 3, Larry L., 5, and Joyce Anne, 8. Judge William D. Radcliff granted a temporary injunction restraining Mr. Pennington from disposing of certain property during the pendency of the suit.

The petition recites the marriage took place Aug. 26, 1939 in Circleville. Mrs. Pennington alleges that on Oct. 4 her husband kicked her and knocked her to the floor and that on Oct. 6 she took the children with her and sought refuge in her father's home in Pickaway county.

WORDS OF THE WISE

CANADIAN PAPER MAKERS TOLD TO SHUN U. S. ORDER

Clarence Brown Advises That Industry Records Not Be Revealed

TORONTO, Oct. 8—Canadian newsprint makers today considered a United States congressman's suggestion that they ignore U. S. subpoenas for their records and tell the department of justice to "go to hell."

Rep. Clarence J. Brown (R) Ohio, Chairman of special house committee investigating the critical newsprint shortage, made the suggestion in Toronto at a meeting of leaders of the Canadian and United States publishing and paper making industries.

He evoked from George A. Drew, prime minister of Ontario, the reply:

"Don't be surprised if we carry out your exact suggestions."

The subpoenas were issued by the department of justice in anti-trust actions involving U. S. paper producers and publishers and their Canadian affiliates.

BROWN delivered his "advice" by telling of a wage-hour suit brought several years ago against one of his Ohio newspapers.

He said that when he learned of the suit, which involved the time an employee spent walking to and from the post office, he told the wage and hours division of the department of labor that "you and the whole U. S. government can go to hell!"

Brown told the Canadians with a grin:

"I don't want to be disrespectful, but if you can draw a lesson or a moral or a suggestion from that action I took, you are welcome."

In his reply to Brown, Drew termed the department of justice's actions "extremely ill advised."

ALTHOUGH DREW offered Brown's special committee any information it wants on Canadian newsprint operations, he added:

"I must say in my official as well as my personal capacity that I would be extremely disappointed if any Canadian company complied with a subpoena to produce its records in the United States."

The speeches by Brown and Drew climaxed a day of inquiry into the cause and cure of the U. S. newsprint shortage. During the day, frequent mention was made of the subpoenas, which Canadian firms are vigorously fighting on the ground that they allegedly go beyond the territorial powers of the United States.

U. S. EMBASSY IN CUBA BLASTED IN DEATH TRIAL

Unfair Aid To Ohio Beauty Charged At Opening Of Shooting Hearing

HAVANA, Oct. 8 — An angry charge that the U. S. embassy in Havana has given unfair aid to Patricia Schmidt was made today immediately prior to the opening of the murder trial of the 22-year-old nightclub dancer.

THE TOLEDO, O., girl whose brunette beauty has suffered from her confinement at Guanabacoa prison is charged with shooting to death John Lester Mee, Chicago attorney and wartime PT-boat commander.

The shooting occurred in Havana harbor aboard Mee's yacht Satira, also the professional name of Patricia.

John Franklin Arnold, a Chicago attorney assisting private prosecutors retained by Mee's father, Dr. Lester Mee, made the charge of embassy intervention.

He asserted the embassy had supplied the court and the defense attorneys with the dead man's war fatigue record while ordering it withheld from the private prosecutors.

Arnold said: "The embassy acted for Patricia and in detriment to the interests of Jack Mee."

ARNOLD SAID he had demanded an explanation from Charles Hutchinson, first secretary of the embassy. Mee's father, he added, will ask a federal investigation.

The medical record is expected to play an important part in the twice-postponed trial to substantiate the defense claim that Mee was nervous and excitable.

Patricia is expected to declare on the witness stand that she killed Mee because he threatened her with a sword used in her exotic dances.

BEAUTY ACCUSED IN SHOOTING OF SWEETHEART

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8—Miss Louise Sharpe, 21-year-old Cincinnati beauty, was free under $5,000 bond today while she awaited possible grand jury action in the shooting of her sweetheart.

Miss Sharpe was charged with shooting with intent to kill Paul J. Streicher, 33, a drug store owner. The shooting occurred in his apartment Sept. 30.

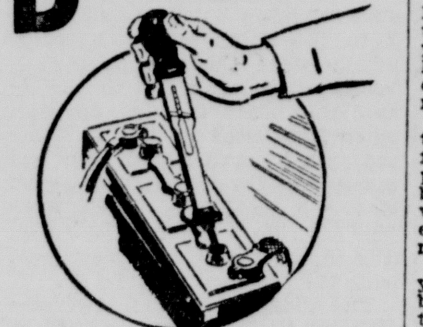

She pleaded innocent when she was arraigned in police court yesterday, but refused to make any other statement on the advice of her attorney. He declared, "We want this case to go to the grand jury."

The girl's mother, Mrs. Vera Sharpe, signed the bond.

Police said that Miss Sharpe told them the shooting climaxed an argument that started when he returned to his apartment with lipstick smeared on his shirt and face.

When an aluminum cap was prepared for the Washington monument in 1884, it was such a novelty that it was exhibited in a New York jewelry store before being installed.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells. Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease. To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste. Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh all out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Study Health.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

I'm proud to write about Co. I, 166th Inf, Ohio National Guard Circleville, Ohio, because it is your National Guard. As citizens and taxpayers, you're all stockholders in this enterprise and you ought to know just how much of an asset it is to Circleville.

It is especially timely to take a look at the National Guard today, because we're in the midst of a great recruiting drive. This drive, started September 16, has a national goal of 88,888 recruits—a man-a-minute over a period of two months. The goal here is 5000 and the goal in Circleville is well, the sky's the limit.

The champion recruiter in each State will be flown to Washington and will attend the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia as a guest of the War Department. That's why I say the sky's the limit here in Circleville because we would like to see one of our home-town boys win the Ohio contest.

"Sure," you say, "I know all about the National Guard. I used to see the boys drilling before the war and I've seen them a couple of times lately. What's there to get so excited about now?"

Well, there are lots of things to get excited about. If you only know the National Guard by what it was before the war, I'd like to tell you that what is being built now is a new National Guard.

It's about three times the size of the pre-war Guard, because we've got a heavier burden of National security.

It's being trained with modern weapons, because that's the only way it can be what the War Department expects it to be—in complete readiness to join with the Regular Army in the first line of defense of the United States if we ever are attacked.

In short, times have changed and the new National Guard is keeping in step with the times.

This is the atomic age and our national security today demands a degree of preparedness we've never had before.

General Eisenhower put that thought into a nutshell when he said recently: "The decision in the future conflict would be determined by our ability to act and react in the first 60 days, rather than the 12th, 18th, or 24th month, as in past wars."

So, the new National Guard adds up to increased security for our nation. That's asset Number One.

But let's come closer in. As in each state, the Ohio National Guard has the continuous role in helping to protect life and property in time of disaster. It has an outstanding record of service to communities throughout the nation in time of flood, fire, explosion and other disasters. You have read about National Guardsmen in the papers many times this year—during the Texas City disaster; after a tornado whipped into Woodward, Oklahoma; out in Iowa during the Des Moines Valley flood; and again in floods in Michigan and Vermont. So the National Guard is ever ready to spring into action in an emergency at the call of the Governor. That's asset Number Two.

Here at home, Co. I, 166th Inf., is as good as a local industry. It brings into Circleville about $15,000 of Federal money annually through its pay-roll and that figure will go up to $36,000 when we have filled our ranks.

It does a lot of other things. Some of the Skills the boys are learning over at the Army include clerical work, supply, motor vehicle equipment, and various others. Training in the National Guard is the responsibility of the Regular Army ground and air forces, so there are standard of proficiency and instructors to see that they are met.

We have established a recreation program too, with basketball and boxing and there are a lot of other things lined up for the Winter.

So there you are. I think you have a going concern—and a growing concern. I hope you are proud of it and that you will help during our great recruiting drive to build Co. I into something even bigger and better. Remember! It's Your National Guard.

THE QUESTION OF FOOD

FOOD IS the number one topic of conversation the world around. Most of the globe's population is hungry, if not faced with starvation. These malnourished millions are looking to the United States for their food. Apparently this country is expected to feed itself and the rest of the earth's inhabitants also.

It is interesting to note that if the United States fail to meet this colossal challenge, many believe the hungry will swing at once into the Soviet orbit. Would the USSR feed the needy, then? Whatever the answer, apparently nobody in America wants to risk such an eventuality. Consequently the United States must attempt to do the feeding job itself.

The task suddenly appears much more gigantic than had been imagined. President Truman, who started out with a gentle, kindly "waste less food" idea, has developed it into a plea that 100 million bushels of grain, or three million tons, be saved, as an extra offering to Europe, in addition to 470 million bushels, or about 14 million tons, already promised and earmarked for shipping abroad.

Mr. Truman and his food committee chairman, Charles Luckman, believe the extra 100 million bushels can be procured through voluntary rationing on the part of American citizenry. No one doubts that they could do it. But will they?

The answer seems to be that the American people can and will gladly save whatever is necessary to send overseas if it is explained to them clearly and simply what they must do to save it.

George Washington had the word. He called for informed public opinion. Americans need exact information. They want to know how much is fair allowance per person per week of the basic foods. They want positive information, not negative suggestions of what not to eat. They want exact assurance as to where this saved food goes, when and how it is delivered.

Give out this information, Mr. President, and watch us act!

IF THE COMMUNISTS WON

IF FRANCE and Russia fought, the French Communist party would try to seize power, says Paul Anxionnaz, chairman of the national assembly's military affairs committee, in a recent speech. "This would mean the liquidation of the French intellectual and administrative elite".

That, of course, is the record of the Communists wherever they have come into control. The latest example is the judicial murder of the anti-Communist leader Petkov in Bulgaria. Everywhere the Communists have ensured their retention of power by imprisoning or murdering their opponents.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Any discussion of the 1948 election must revolve about the Republican party, as the Democrats will surely nominate President Harry Truman, Henry Wallace notwithstanding. In fact, every day the significance of Henry Wallace pales more and more as our relations with Russia increasingly deteriorate and the Russians insult and infuriate the American people. Henry rides the wrong horse. The danger to the Republicans is that Vishinsky will force the American people to elect Harry Truman as an answer to Soviet Russia.

Senator Robert A. Taft has gained in stature by his Western trip. Americans like a courageous man who can take it like a sport. Whereas Tom Dewey is criticized for saying too little, Bob Taft is criticized for talking too much. But it is so obviously honest talk, so straight from the shoulder, so assertive of fundamental principle that it has gained him strength in unexpected places. Whether Taft comes out of it the Republican candidate or not, he has asserted Republican leadership and he has been accepted. As a matter of fact, his leadership in the Party is now unchallenged and any Republican candidate for the presidency will have to meet that reality.

General Eisenhower's boom grows. He has elbowed out Harold Stassen altogether and is moving in on the margins of the Dewey strength. While Dewey has a following that is surely his, he also could count on votes in the convention from delegates who, while not wholeheartedly supporting him, accepted his nomination as inevitable. For a time this gave Dewey the appearance almost of a sure thing. The emergence of Eisenhower as a candidate has given these marginal delegates something to think about and considerable elbow room.

On the other hand, party leaders generally are not too enthusiastic about Eisenhower. They feel that they will be buying a pig in a poke. They know nothing about his philosophy of life. Some are now engaged in a most thorough fine-combing of his record to discover whether, in a campaign, Harry Truman and the Democratic National Committee could not explode a bomb that would destroy him. Taft's and Dewey's records have stood the scrutiny of years; Eisenhower has enjoyed the obscurity of a peacetime and the protectives of a wartime military officer. The feeling is general among professional politicians—such as matter in conventions—that it is impossible to appraise Eisenhower's chances until after he becomes a civilian in January.

Meanwhile the fact that General MacArthur plans to return to the United States in April hangs like Damocles' sword over the politicians. No one can appraise the public receptivity of MacArthur. If he returns the beloved imperial Pro-Consul, whose march from San Francisco to Washington will be a triumphant festival, no one could possibly stop his nomination. If the country greets him simply as another general back from the wars, his return will not matter. Certainly, Eisenhower's aspirations depend upon the public reception of MacArthur; both Taft and Dewey must take MacArthur into their calculations.

Meanwhile the Republican National Committee approaches 1948 inadequately financed and not at all effectively organized. (Continued on Page Ten)

Measures That Prove Helpful In Treating Cerebral Palsy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AMONG all the sad things which a doctor sees, none is more pathetic than a child afflicted with cerebral palsy. This is a form of paralysis and though it allows its victims to move, no movement can be directed to a predetermined end. In addition their muscles are often so badly contracted as to deform affected parts of the body.

In most instances this type of paralysis is due to some damage of the brain occurring at the time of birth.

Seven Infants It has been estimated that seven infants with this disorder are born each year for every 100,000 population. Of these seven, one usually succumbs early in life, two have some mental disturbances, while the remaining four, though mentally normal, are physically handicapped.

Of course, the degree of injury varies to a great extent. In some cases, the paralysis may be slight, and in others the condition may be almost hopeless.

Birth is a difficult process and a number of things may happen at this time to cause brain injury to the child. Sometimes birth occurs too rapidly as it often does when the child is born before the normal time. Sometimes a long-drawn out, difficult labor will result in brain hemorrhage due to pressure.

Excessive use of drugs to relieve the pain of childbirth may affect the baby adversely. Hence one of the most important things in preventing this condition is a properly supervised labor, in which instruments are used only when absolutely necessary.

Great care should be taken to make sure that the birth does not occur too rapidly. Nature requires time to prepare the way for the child; otherwise, its head may be injured.

Treatment of Child

In so far as the treatment of a child with cerebral spastic paralysis is concerned, a number of measures are employed. Massage and exercises are helpful. Sometimes operations are performed to lengthen tendons and fix the feet in proper position.

In 1944, first reports were issued concerning the use of a drug known as prostigmine in the treatment of cerebral spastic paralysis. This drug has the effect of relaxing the muscles. It cannot be expected to cure the disorder, but it is helpful in relieving the symptoms. The younger the patient, the better is the response to it.

Children Talk Better

It has been noted that when this drug is used, the children are able to talk better with less spasm of the face muscle. There is improvement in the use of the arms but there is not as great a degree of benefit in the legs.

It is suggested that another drug known as atropine be given with the prostigmine in order to ward off such things as abdominal pains or breathing difficulties which the prostigmine may occasionally produce.

If, with the prostigmine, no improvement is noted within four to six weeks, its use should be discontinued.

Answer: The cause of cysts is not known. Operation is, as a rule, required to eliminate them. The operation, of course, will have to be carried out in a hospital.

PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

THE LITTLE cabin seemed to Gail, through the rainbow mist of her tears, more than ever like a story-book cottage. Out of that door might emerge any of her most beloved fairy-story characters. It was like something in a Disney drawing—quaint and low, and so fitted into its background, its surroundings that it might almost have grown there, as the trees had done.

The small windowpanes were shining; she and Norah and Kate had washed and polished them lovingly, and the crisp, ruffled curtains looped back from them she and Norah had made with their own hands, under Kate's supervision. Without opening the door, which was wide and low and built in two sections so that the upper half could be opened while the lower half stayed closed, she could see everything within the little house as though she walked through it—though she only saw it through the eyes of her heart. The living room, wide and low and cheerful, with its flowered curtains, its fresh slip covers on quaint old-fashioned furniture; the bright rug scattered over the darkly stained floor; the small, enchanting kitchen, gay and colorful.

She turned suddenly, unable to look any more upon the little lost house of her most cherished dreams, and went back to the house where Lissa and Martin still were the hub of upheaval.

As she came up the steps and into the old house, she heard Lissa saying sharply, "Charles, you really are the most stubborn creature in all the world. After all, if I no longer need the money, why shouldn't you have it back? You can leave it as it is, if you want to, and accept the income—or well do whatever is necessary to make the whole thing revert to you. Martin knows about such things."

And then Martin's voice was saying quietly, with a hint of humorous pleading, "I really wish you would, Prentice. After all, the lady is a bit of a handful under the best of circumstances. And with a bit of money of her own—well, it would only be a further complication. I made a settlement on her as a wedding present, which should be more than ample for all her needs. There's no reason in the world why you shouldn't have the use of what will otherwise simply be lying around in the bank."

Gail stood very still, wide-eyed, breathless. The income that had seemed so inadequate for life as Lissa wanted to live it, would mean modest luxury here, Gail knew; the old house remodeled, made charming, supplied with the comforts of modern appliances.

"Well, Kate?" asked Charles' voice, and Gail found herself in the doorway, watching them, all but holding her breath.

Kate, slim and tall and quiet in her fresh cotton dress, looked from Lissa to Charles and then to Martin, and Gail set her teeth hard to keep back her little plea.

"It's very kind of you, Mrs. Kincaid," Kate said quietly, "and very generous."

"It isn't at all," said Lissa almost shortly, and there was something shamed in her look. "I should never have accepted so much in the first place, only then, Charles had such a lot left—or I thought he had. So—well, anyway, Martin and I will attend to it as soon as we get back to town."

Gail gave a little whoop of delight. She flung herself upon Charles and hugged him hard, and then turned to Lissa and kissed her.

Lissa was pleased and happy, and Martin was quite cheerful. There was a hubbub of laughter and chatter, and through it all, Gail was conscious that Greg and Paul were in the doorway. She looked once at Greg and then away, because she could not guess at his reaction, for his face was set and his eyes were inscrutable.

A little later, when Lissa and Martin were collecting their belongings and preparing to leave, Paul managed a moment alone with Charles.

"I was wondering, sir," he said awkwardly, "if you'd have any need for an extra hand about the place?"

Charles looked at him sharply, puzzled.

"You don't mean you'd like to turn farmer?" he protested.

"Sounds kind of crazy, I know, sir, but—well, this is the first time I've ever been on a real farm," said Paul frankly. "And I could go big for a place like this. Greg's a great guy; he and I hit it off but good! With a tractor, as soon as it's possible to buy one, and other farm machinery coming on the market, he and I could keep this place manicured to the teeth. We could rent more land, build it up, really go places. I know I'm not much of a farmhand, but I know machinery from A to Z. I knew a good bit before I went into the Army, knocking around at garages and service stations, and they taught me a lot more. If you could see your way clear, sir, I'd try like the dickens to earn my board and keep. And that's all I'd ask, to be in with."

Charles said quite honestly, "You'd be worth a great deal more than I could afford to pay you, Paul, but we'd be mighty glad to have you!"

Paul beamed with delight. "Swear, sir—well! Thanks a million! I'll just hop in and give the boss 30 days' notice. He's a right guy—I'd hate to let him down—but I'll report for duty in 30 days or less!" he said, and wrung Charles' hand.

ALTHOUGH there are excellent promises coming from quite unforeseen and unexpected quarters, involving change, new agreements and environs, with far-reaching climax, yet it may be that over-cautiousness, too realistic an insight, or even disinclination for the unusual effort required, may nullify more than fair prospects, or may postpone innovation or ventures into the unknown. It might be that sentimental, domestic or other purely personal factors might be the underlying cause.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a spot for unusual adventures, new contacts and thrilling experiences, where novelty exceptional conditions or projects hold more than lucrative promise. Sentimental, domestic and romantic fine augury for gratification and ultimate fulfillments. Yet such might have at root a sense of the static, inertia, or of disinclination to venture forth into unknown fields, even though hazards be small and prospects alluring. The rich final is worthwhile.

A child born on this day may have much talent and opportunity, but which an inherent inertia may render ineffective.

PLAYING "second hand low" is just as senseless in some situations as playing "third hand high" is in others. In place of those old Whist rules of play, there is a better one for contract bridge, which may be phrased in a variety of ways. It may be expressed in a single word, "think," or in a compound word, "honor sense," or in three words, "use your brain." No matter what you call it, the general idea is the same. It consists of figuring out what play seems most likely to benefit your side, or which threatens the least damage.

My New York

NEW YORK—The strangest establishment I have come across in the last several months is a little dance studio on upper Madison avenue, operated by a girl named Ann Lano. Outwardly it looks pretty much like any dance studio; a smaller edition, say, of the Arthur Murray places. There is lots of red and blue and chrome, and what seems to be incense in the air, and all that is required for such joints. There's only one thing: the place is full of prizefighters.

Somebody had told me that the professionals—teams like the DeMarcos and such—look on Ann as the best instructor of the Latin dances in town, although her studio is comparatively small. I went around to talk to her.

Before I even learned about the prizefighters, I knew there was nothing ordinary or rubber-stampish about Miss Lano. Small and dark, clad demurely in black skirt and light blue sweater, she poised gracefully on a chair, to answer my questions—until she happened to look out the window and down into the street. She jumped up, flung open the window, "Lover man!" she screamed at some guy wearing a dark hat, in the street. "Come on up, ya dope!" She almost fell out the window, waving him upstairs. Then she went back to her chair, smoothed out her skirt and resumed looking demure. "Now where were we?" she asked, her voice like fairy bells.

FROM THERE ON IN, Miss Lano put on a performance that would have shamed Milton Berle. She was up, she was down, she was describing customers (example: "the old fool!"), she was tangoing, she was sitting in the lap of Mr. Dark Hat, the lover man, who finally came upstairs from the street, and she was reviewing a dancing, singing and teaching career that began back in the old Barclay's nightclub, on Avenue U in Brooklyn, and has stretched through every joint in town—Leon & Eddie's, the Havana-Madrid, the Hurricane, La Conga, etc.

"I've been in ALL the La Congas," she explained. "They're always starting a new club by that name, and one of the first things the new manager always does is to look me up and hire me."

For years, the animated Ann has been a fierce addict of the fights—not only in Madison Square Garden, where the plusher trained seals wage eight-ounce gloves at each other, but in the smoky, tiny joints, the neighborhood clubs. It was only a question of time before every pug in town knew her.

Ann knows more about the fighters' lives, public and personal, than even Mike Jacobs. She delights in telling the one about an Italian boxer friend of hers who fancied himself a Don Juan.

He was putting through a match one night, keeping one eye on a bleached blonde at ringside, who seemed equally interested in him. He finally maneuvered near her and then, sopping up his foe's punches on his elbows, looked down at her and winked.

She promptly yelled at his opponent: "C'mon, Mike—kill the guinea rat!" Ann's pal, amazed, and hurt to the quick, measured his rival bitterly and with one punch knocked him stiff. Then he strode over to the blonde, took cold, careful aim—and spat right into her lovely face.

NOW, ALL THE KNUCKLE-DUSTERS come to her studio for lessons. And on the whole, she says, they are really good. Her star pupil was middleweight Jerry Fiorello, and others have included Tony Canzoneri, Packy O'Gatty and Rocky Graziano. The only peculiar one is Canzoneri, who has a little bone step that he uses, that looks like nothing so much as a pug baring and shuffling in to throw punches.

Not all of Ann's clients are boxers, naturally. The place seems to attract crooners—"boudoir baritones," is Ann's description. Frank Parker, Jerry Cooper, Del Casino, Johnny Johnston—all these and more have learned from Miss L.

The only kind of client Ann can't stand is what she calls "rhumba degenerates." "They're all bald," she says, scornfully, "pot-bellied and baggy-trousered—and they all want everyone to watch them rhumba."

"They are in all the contests, and they are awful. You don't have to urge them to dance; you have to hold them down. Artistically, they are foul—and it breaks my heart to watch them."

so assertive of fundamental principle that it has gained him strength in unexpected places. Whether Taft comes out of it the Republican candidate or not, he has asserted Republican leadership and he has been accepted. As a matter of fact, his leadership in the Party is now unchallenged and any Republican candidate for the presidency will have to meet that reality.

General Eisenhower's boom grows. He has elbowed out Harold Stassen altogether
and is moving in on the margins of the Dewey strength. While Dewey has a following that is surely his, he also could count
on votes in the convention from delegates who, while not wholeheartedly supporting him, accepted his nomination as inevitable. For a time this gave Dewey the appearance almost of a sure thing. The emergence of Eisenhower as a candidate has given these marginal delegates something to think about and considerable elbow room.

On the other hand, party leaders generally are not too enthusiastic about Eisenhower. They feel that they will be buying a pig in a poke. They know nothing about his philosophy of life. Some are now engaged in a most thorough fine-combing of his record to discover whether, in a campaign, Harry Truman and the Democratic National Committee could not explode a bomb that would destroy him. Taft's and Dewey's records have stood the scrutiny of years; Eisenhower has enjoyed the obscurity of a peacetime and the protectives of a wartime military officer. The feeling is general among professional politicians—
such as matter in conventions—that it is impossible to appraise Eisenhower's chances until after he becomes a civilian in January.

Meanwhile the fact that General Mac-Arthur plans to return to the United States in April hangs like Damocles's sword over the politicians. No one can appraise the public receptivity of MacArthur. If he returns the beloved Imperial Pro-Consul,
whose march from San Francisco to Washington will be a triumphant festival, no one could possibly stop his nomination. If the country greets him simply as another general back from the wars, his return will not matter. Certainly, Eisenhower's aspirations depend upon the public reception of MacArthur; both Taft and Dewey must take MacArthur into their calculations.

Meanwhile the Republican National Committee approaches 1948 inadequately financed and not at all effectively organ-

Measures That Prove Helpful In Treating Cerebral Palsy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AMONG all the sad things which a doctor sees, none is more pathetic than a child afflicted with cerebral palsy. This is a form of paralysis and though it allows its victims to move, no movement can be directed to a predetermined end. In addition their muscles are often so badly contracted as to deform affected parts of the body.

In most instances this type of paralysis is due to some damage of the brain occurring at the time of birth.

Seven Infants

It has been estimated that seven infants with this disorder are born
each year for every 100,000 population. Of these seven, one usually succumbs early in life, two have some mental disturbances, while the remaining four, though mentally normal, are physically handicapped.

Of course, the degree of injury varies to a great extent. In some cases, the paralysis may be slight,
and in others the condition may be almost hopeless.

Birth is a difficult process and a number of things may happen at this time to cause brain injury to the child. Sometimes birth occurs too rapidly as it often does when the child is born before the normal
time. Sometimes a long-drawn out, difficult labor will result in brain
hemorrhage due to pressure.

Excessive use of drugs to relieve the pain of childbirth may affect the baby adversely. Hence one of the most important things in preventing this condition is a properly
supervised labor, in which instruments are used only when absolutely necessary.

Great care should be taken to make sure that the birth does not occur too rapidly. Nature requires time to prepare the way for the child; otherwise, its head may be injured.

forced through too small an opening with resultant brain damage.

Treatment of Child

In so far as the treatment of a child with cerebral spastic paralysis is concerned, a number of measures are employed. Massage and exercises are helpful. Sometimes operations are performed to lengthen tendons and fix the feet in proper position.
In 1944, first reports were issued concerning the use of a drug known as prostigmine in the treatment of cerebral spastic paralysis. This drug has the effect of relaxing the muscles. It cannot be expected to cure the disorder, but it is helpful in relieving the symptoms. The younger the patient, the better is the response to it.

Children Talk Better

It has been noted that when this drug is used, the children are able to talk better with less spasm of the face muscles. There is improvement in the use of the arms but there is not as great a degree of benefit in the legs.

It is suggested that another drug known as atropine be given with the prostigmine in order to ward off such things as abdominal pains or breathing difficulties which the prostigmine may occasionally produce.

If, with the prostigmine, no improvement is noted within four to six weeks, its use should be discontinued.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reader: What causes a cyst in the womb? Can it be removed in a doctor's office or is hospitalization required?

Answer: The cause of cysts is not known. Operation is, as a rule, required to eliminate them. The operation, of course, will have to be carried out in a hospital.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

THE LITTLE cabin seemed to Gail, through the rainbow mist of her tears, more than ever like a storybook cottage. Out of that door might emerge any of her most beloved fairy-story characters. It was like something in a Disney drawing—quaint and low,
and so fitted into its background,
its surroundings, that it might almost have grown there, as the trees had done.

The small windowpanes were shining; she and Norah and Kate
had washed and polished them
lovingly, and the crisp, ruffled curtains leaped back from them
she and Norah had made with their own hands, under Kate's supervision. Without opening the door, which was wide and low and built in two sections so that the upper half could be opened while the lower half stayed closed, she could see everything within the little house as though she walked through it—though she only saw it through the eyes of her heart.

The living room, wide and low and cheerful, with its flowered curtains, its fresh slip covers on quaint old-fashioned furniture; the bright rug scattered over the darkly stained floor; the small, enchanting kitchen, gay and colorful.
She turned suddenly, unable to look any more upon the little lost
house of her most cherished dreams, and went back to the house where Lissa and Martin still were the hub of upheaval.

As she came up the steps and into the old house, she heard Lissa saying sharply, "Charles, you really are the most stubborn creature
in all the world. After all, if I no longer need the money, why shouldn't you have it back? You can leave it as it is, if you want to, and accept the income—or we'll do whatever is necessary to make the whole thing revert to you."

And then Martin's voice was saying quietly, with a hint of humorous pleading, "I really wish you would, Prentice. After all, the lady is a bit of a handful under the best of circumstances. And with a bit of money of her own—
well, it would only be a further complication. I made a settlement on her as a wedding present, which should be more than ample for all her needs. There's no reason in the world why you shouldn't have the use of what will otherwise simply be lying around in the bank."

Gail stood very still, wide-eyed, breathless. The income that had seemed so inadequate for life as Lissa wanted to live it, would mean modest luxury here, Gail
knew; the old house remodeled,
made charming, supplied with the comforts of modern appliances.
"Well, Kate?" asked Charles voice, and Gail found herself in the doorway, watching them, all but holding her breath.

Kate, slim and tall and quiet in her fresh cotton dress, looked from Lissa to Charles and then to Martin, and Gail set her teeth hard to keep back her little plea.

"Very kind of you, Mrs. Kincaid," Kate said quietly, "and very generous."

"It isn't at all," said Lissa almost shortly, and there was something shamed in her look. "I should never have accepted so much in the first place, only then,
Charles had such a lot left—or I thought he had, and—well, anyway, Martin and I will attend to it as soon as we get back to town."

Gail gave a little whoop of delight. She flung herself upon Charles and hugged him hard, and then turned to Lissa and kissed her.

Lissa was pleased and happy,
and Martin was quite cheerful.
There was a hubbub of laughter
and chatter, and through it all,
Gail was conscious that Greg and Paul were in the doorway. She looked on at Greg and then
away, because she could not guess
at his reaction, for his face was set and his eyes were inscrutable.

A little later, when Lissa and Martin were collecting their belongings and preparing to leave,
Paul managed a moment alone
with Charles.

"I was wondering, sir," he said
awkwardly, "if you'd have any need for an extra hand about the place?"

Charles looked at him sharply,
puzzled.

"You don't mean you'd like to turn farmer?" he protested.
"Sounds kind of crazy, I know,
sir, but—well, this is the first time
I've ever been on a real farm."

said Paul frankly. "And I could go big for a place like this. Greg's
a great guy; he and I hit it off good. With a tractor, as soon as it's possible to buy one, and other farm machinery coming on the market, he and I could keep this place manicured to the teeth. We could rent more land, build it up, really go places. I know I'm not much of a farmhand, but I know machinery from A to Z. I knew a good bit before I went into the Army, knocking around at garages
and service stations, and they taught me a lot more. If you could see your way clear, sir, I'd try like the dickens to earn my board and keep. And that's all I'd ask, to begin with."

Charles said quite honestly,
"You'd be worth a great deal more than I could afford to pay you, Paul, but we'd be mighty glad to have you!"

Paul beamed with delight.
"Swell, sir—swell! Thanks a million. I'll just hop in and give the boss 30 days' notice. He's a right guy—I'd hate to let him down—but I'll report for duty in 30 days or less!" he said, and wrung Charles' hand.

Norah, who came into the kitchen at that moment, said, "Hi, what gives? The folks are ready to leave, Paul."

"Know something, Norah?" said
Paul happily. "I've just landed a new job. Mr. Prentice is taking me on as a hired hand as soon as I help the boss break in a new driver."

"Honestly, Uncle Charles?" Nor-ah was incredulous.

"Do you mind?" asked Paul swiftly, uneasily.

Norah looked sharply at him
and her eyes widened a little.

"Why, no," she told him quickly. "I don't mind. Why should I?"

Paul looked at her for a long moment and there was a nod in his eyes that Norah did not see.
But Charles did, and for a moment his own eyes widened.

"Then that's swell," said Paul happily. "Greg doesn't mind either.
Boy, he and I are going to farm
this land until it yells uncle—right down to the socks."

Charles smiled and said, "We'll be glad to have you, Paul."

Paul looked about the big old kitchen and drew a deep breath.
"Think of it—I've got a home
saw the guys I used to hear yapping about Mom's apple pie and stuff," he said, and Norah's eyes grew warm and her smile a trifle tremulous.

Standing beside the handsome
cay in the sun-drenched morning,
they all waited to speed the travelers on their way. Paul and Greg were a little at one side, speaking in low voices, but Norah, glancing at them, knew that Paul had told Greg he would be back and that it was obvious Greg was delighted as the two grinned at each other.

If there was about Lissa a small trace of Lady Bountiful dispersing largesse to her loyal subjects, nobody was inclined to be too critical of her. She was obviously aglow with the satisfaction of having done a good deed, performed a most generous gesture;
and if the trust fund she had relinquished to Charles was so small,
in comparison to Martin's great wealth, that she could throw it away without missing it, that did not in the least alter Charles' appreciation or his happy anticipation of the many things he could now do for his beloved Kate. His eyes warmed to tenderness as he looked at Kate, straight and tall and serene, looking in his far cheap
home-made cotton dress far more lovely than Lissa could ever look in the most inspired creation of Mainbocher or Schiaparelli. Remembering all the sacrifices she had made for him, sacrifices she had offered gladly, casually, he drew a deep breath of happiness.
Now the sacrifices could be repaid.

PLAYING "second hand low" is just as senseless in some situa-

is in others. In place of those old Whist rules of play, there is a better one for contract bridge,
which may be phrased in a va-

pressed in a single word, "think,"
or in a compound word, "horse sense," or in three words, "use your brain." No matter what you call it, the general idea is the same. It consists of figuring out what play seems most likely to benefit your side, or which threatens the least damage.

turn. After North's spade bid, he decided that a heart lead was almost certain and that he would like it, so he hopped all the way into game in No Trumps. With his quite inadequate values, he should have been set a couple of tricks, but as the play developed
he was down only one.

West double-crossed. South by not leading the unbid hearts, but instead the second of North's suits, the spade 9. Everybody covered that, the J, Q and K showing. South led the diamond

2 to the K, then the heart J,
which went through to the Q.
West led the spade 6 to the A,
and the heart 9 went through when East held up his A. Now the club 2 was led and East, remembering the "second hand low"
idea, put on his 6, which later cost him side a trick. The 10 on this forced the K and West sent back the diamond 9 to the Q.
The diamond A and 10 were collected and the club 7 led. East, with only the Q, had to play it.
He had the heart A left to score,
also the spade 10-7; he cashed
the 10, then had to lead to the dummy's spade 8 for the final trick. If East had used the Q on the first club trick, his side could have had three tricks in that suit

beaten South one more. That play

Mrs. C. D. Rector and Mrs. Leslie Dearth played a piano duet. Miss Gift Macklin read a history of the grange, covering the past 27 years activities. Refreshments were served during the informal social hours.

Twenty five members were present at the meeting of Logan Elm grange, held in the Pickaway township school building. Hoyt Timmons, master, was in the chair and heard routine business reports. He announced that $100 had been donated by Pickaway county grange to the entertainment fund for the delegates at the state and national grange meeting. The meeting will be November 10th. through 14th, in Columbus.

Reports and brief resumes were submitted of the recent Pickaway County Fair. The master called a special meeting for inspection on Monday, October 13, in the school building. All members are urged to attend. Miss Mildred Shaner was reported to be on the sick list.

Mrs. Turney Pontious was program chairman. She presented Miss Ruth McKenzie in a piano solo. Mrs. Harding Smith read her original poem entitled "October."

Various members participated in a spontaneous chance program. They drew slips which designated what they had to perform. Some sang solos, and duets while others took part in a debate. Balance of the group served as judges for the debate on the topic "Men Should Not Enter The House In Their Work Shoes." The judges voted the men, winners of the debate. Miss McKenzie accompanied all vocal numbers at the piano.

Loren D. Hynes, Washington C. H. secretary of Ohio State grange, was guest speaker at the regular session of Nebraska grange. The meeting designated as "Booster Night" was held in Grange Hall. Routine business was transacted. Robert Rader was obligated in the fourth degree of the grange.

Mr. Hynes' address dealt with grange activities through out the state. He presented information concerning the state and national grange meeting to be

Three Pickaway county granges met in regular session Tuesday evening and conducted interesting programs.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Glick were guests and inspecting officers at the regular meeting of Saltcreek Valley grange when the members gathered in the auditorium of the school building. Forty seven subordinate members and 9 juvenile members were present when Robert Delong, worthy master, opened the meeting.

ANPA PRESENTS KEY LEGAL TEST OF TAFT LAW

Printers Union Accused Of Violating Provisions
Of Labor Act

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8—What may become one of the key legal tests of the Taft-Hartley act started on its course through governmental machinery today.

The test was presented by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, which charged in a petition filed with the seventh regional office of the National Labor Relations board in Cincinnati that the AFL-International Typographical Union is violating several provisions of the law.

The petition itemized seven counts, ranging from refusal "to bargain collectively in good faith" to "featherbedding" tactics, on which the ANPA claimed that the union of composing room employees was seeking to evade the new law.

Regional NLRB Director Jack Evans said that he would assign attorneys and field examiners to investigate all sides of the question. If the probe turns up evidence to substantiate the charges, a complaint will be filed against the ITU and a hearing scheduled. Such action might wind up in federal court with requests for injunctions.

THE PETITION was filed by Cranston Williams, general manager of the association, and Elisha Hanson, ANPA counsel. Williams issued a statement in which he declared that the ANPA was not engaging in "a union-busting program" in taking the action.

The ANPA general manager traced the reason for the action to the ITU's convention in Cleveland last August, where it was decided that the union should sign no more contracts under the Taft-Hartley law. He said:

"This step was taken with utmost regret and only after every effort on the part of ANPA, through conferences with executives of the ITU to develop a relationship in harmony with the law of the land, had failed.

"If that policy (adopted at the Cleveland convention) affected only the ITU, the ANPA would not be concerned with it. But by its precise terms, as spelled out in the resolution of the convention, it requires publishers employing ITU members not only to conspire with the ITU to violate the law, but to violate it."

THE ANPA petition also charged that the union sought to cause publishers to discriminate against their employees in violation of the law by imposing "the union's closed shop law;" that it attempted to compel the employment of only those foremen who are ITU members, and that it tried to compel publishers to "cease doing business with other employers for illegal reasons."

The seventh point in the ANPA petition alleged that union law must be observed by publishers even where it conflicts with the federal law and that "conditions of employment will be unilaterally imposed by the union and any publisher failing to comply with that will be struck."

In 1944-1945, steel industry transportation costs, largely paid by producers, equalled an average of $9.72 per ton of steel produced.

EARLY ELECTION HINT SEEN IN ATTLEE SHAKEUP

LONDON, Oct. 8—Some political experts today interpreted Prime Minister Attlee's shakeup in his cabinet as an indication the labor party intends having a general election sooner than expected.

Last week Winston Churchill told his conservative party at its Brighton conference to be ready for an election "at any time this year, or next."

The labor government which gained power two years ago will remain in office until 1950 unless it is defeated in the house of commons or voluntarily agrees to a general election.

Political informants pointed out that Attlee made surprisingly few alterations in the long-heralded cabinet reorganization, particularly as regards the senior ministerial posts.

However, he did make sweeping dismissals from the junior ministries, facilitating the promotion of young men. It was believed that these newcomers form the key to laborite intentions.

The stress on youth for the junior offices plus the other changes in cabinet posts gave these political experts the opinion that Attlee's present senior team is a sort of "caretaker government."

Some British newspaper editorials declared that the cabinet changes indicate that the government is resisting its leftist supporters and is veering to the right.

Others, like the London Daily Telegraph, thought that there was no fundamental change in the political outlook of the cabinet.

Attlee ousted 11 ministers and undersecretaries. The most important of these was Emanuel Shinwell, leftist minister of fuel and power. Shinwell was demoted to the cabinet post of war secretary.

To Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke Female seminary in 1836, is attributed the saying, "Educate the women and the men will be educated." From her work at Holyoke sprang women in America.

ANPA PRESENTS KEY LEGAL TEST OF TAFT LAW

Printers Union Accused Of
Violating Provisions
Of Labor Act

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—What may become one of the key legal tests of the Taft-Hartley act started on its course through governmental machinery today.

The test was presented by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, which charged in a petition filed with the seventh regional office of the National Labor Relations board in Cincinnati that the AFL-International Typographical Union is violating several provisions of the law.

The petition itemized seven counts, ranging from refusal "to bargain collectively in good faith" to "featherbedding" tactics, on which the ANPA claimed that the union of composing room employees was seeking to evade the new law.

Regional NLRB Director Jack Evans said that he would assign attorneys and field examiners to investigate all sides of the question. If the probe turns up evidence to substantiate the charges, a complaint will be filed against the ITU and a hearing scheduled. Such action might wind up in federal court with requests for injunctions.

THE PETITION was filed by Cranston Williams, general manager of the association, and Elisha Hanson, ANPA counsel. Williams issued a statement in which he declared that the ANPA was not engaging in "a union-busting program" in taking the action.

The ANPA general manager traced the reason for the action to the ITU's convention in Cleveland last August, where it was decided that the union should sign no more contracts under the Taft-Hartley law. He said:

"This step was taken with utmost regret and only after every effort on the part of ANPA, through conferences with executives of the ITU to develop a relationship in harmony with the law of the land, had failed.

"If that policy (adopted at the Cleveland convention) affected only the ITU, the ANPA would not be concerned with it. But by its precise terms, as spelled out in the resolution of the convention, it requires publishers employing ITU members not only to conspire with the ITU to violate the law, but to violate it."

THE ANPA petition also charged that the union sought to cause publishers to discriminate against their employees in violation of the law by imposing "the union's closed shop law;" that it attempted to compel the employment of only those foremen who are ITU members, and that it tried to compel publishers to "cease doing business with other employers for illegal reasons."

The seventh point in the ANPA petition alleged that union law must be observed by publishers even where it conflicts with the federal law and that "conditions of employment will be unilaterally imposed by the union and any publisher failing to comply with that will be struck."

In 1944-1945, steel industry transportation costs, largely paid by producers, equalled an average of $9.72 per ton of steel produced.

EARLY ELECTION HINT SEEN IN ATTLEE SHAKEUP

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Some political experts today interpreted Prime Minister Attlee's shakeup in his cabinet as an indication the labor party intends having a general election sooner than expected.

Last week Winston Churchill told his conservative party at its Brighton conference to be ready for an election "at any time this year, or next."

The labor government which gained power two years ago will remain in office until 1950 unless it is defeated in the house of commons or voluntarily agrees to a general election.

Political informants pointed out that Attlee made surprisingly few alterations in the long-heralded cabinet reorganization, particularly as regards the senior ministerial posts.

However, he did make sweeping dismissals from the junior ministries, facilitating the promotion of young men. It was believed that these newcomers form the key to laborite intentions.

The stress on youth for the junior offices plus the other changes in cabinet posts gave these political experts the opinion that Attlee's present senior team is a sort of "caretaker government."

Some British newspaper editorials declared that the cabinet changes indicate that the government is resisting its leftist supporters and is veering to the right.

Others, like the London Daily Telegraph, thought that there was no fundamental change in the political outlook of the cabinet.

Attlee ousted 11 ministers and undersecretaries. The most important of these was Emanuel Shinwell, leftist minister of fuel and power. Shinwell was demoted to the cabinet post of war secretary.

To Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke Female seminary in 1836, is attributed the saying, "Educate the women and the men will be educated." From her work at Holyoke sprang women in America.

FIRE WRECKS BAR
SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 8.—The interior of a newly decorated Springfield bar was in ruins today and more than $1,000 worth of whisky and wine destroyed by a fire that swept Son's bar. Firemen said that the fire started in a rest room from an undetermined cause. It was discovered when flames billowed from the roof.

Horses will be required to wear headlights and tail lights when used on moonlight rides, according to a new ordinance in Hempstead, Long Island.

'LITTLE TIGERS' TOP BLUE LIONS BY 31-12 SCORE

"Dixie" Harris Pitches Four Touchdown Passes As Juniors Win

Cincinnati's "Little Tigers" swamped a junior edition of the Washington C. H. Blue Lions here Tuesday night 31-12 with John "Dixie" Harris heaving four touchdown passes to show the way for the eighth and ninth graders.

WASHINGTON scored early in the first quarter with Self going around end. Self also kicked for the point after touchdown but the ball slipped to one side and the attempt was no good.

Then came two passes from "Dixie" Harris to Don Mancini for Cincinnati scores with the extra points muffed, the first by a low kick and the second by a low pass from center.

Mancini took another pass from Harris deep in Washington territory in the second quarter and scored the third touchdown for the Tigers. The extra point was no good.

Third quarter scoring was limited to the Blue Lions' final tally of the evening when Alkire drove through the line for six points. The one-point bonus kick was low and definitely lacked power.

Holmes went through the line for Cincinnati's fourth touchdown in the final frame and it was quickly followed by another payoff pitch from Harris to Jim Starkey with Ott scoring the point after touchdown on a line buck.

Thursday night the Cincinnati Reserve team will meet the Chillicothe junior squad at the local field in the second pigskin treat of the week for Tiger fans. Game time will be 8 p. m.

PERRY MOSS ON TOP IN BIG NINE OFFENSE RACE

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The brawl for top individual performance ratings in Western Conference football began again today, and the faces were familiar.

There were, to begin with, Perry Moss of Illinois, leading the pack in passing and total offense at this early stage; Lou Mihailovich of Indiana, who last year topped the loop in pass receiving, in front in that phase once more; and Indiana half-back George Taliaferro, back after a year's absence and running second in total offense.

Clarence Self of Wisconsin leads in rushing with an average of 9.3 yards per haul, although Purdue's Harry Szulborski leads in total yardage gained rushing with 180.

Dike Eddleman of Illinois is the punting genius of the conference at this particular point. All this, of course, is subject to rapid and violent change, since three teams—Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan—have yet to meet a conference foe. Michigan in particular, with dynamic Bob Chapuis, last year's total-offense leader, at the controls, may wrap up the statistics department and put same in its pocket before the season is played out.

'KEEP BOUDREAU' CLEVELAND FANS PETITION VEECK

CLEVELAND, Oct. 8.—"Keep Boudreau" petitions appeared today on Cleveland's Euclid avenue where Indians' fans who wish to keep the shortstop-manager can put their desires in writing.

Max R. Friedman, Cleveland auto dealer, said he has five notebooks which he expects to fill with signatures under the heading: "We, the undersigned, request that Lou Boudreau should not be traded."

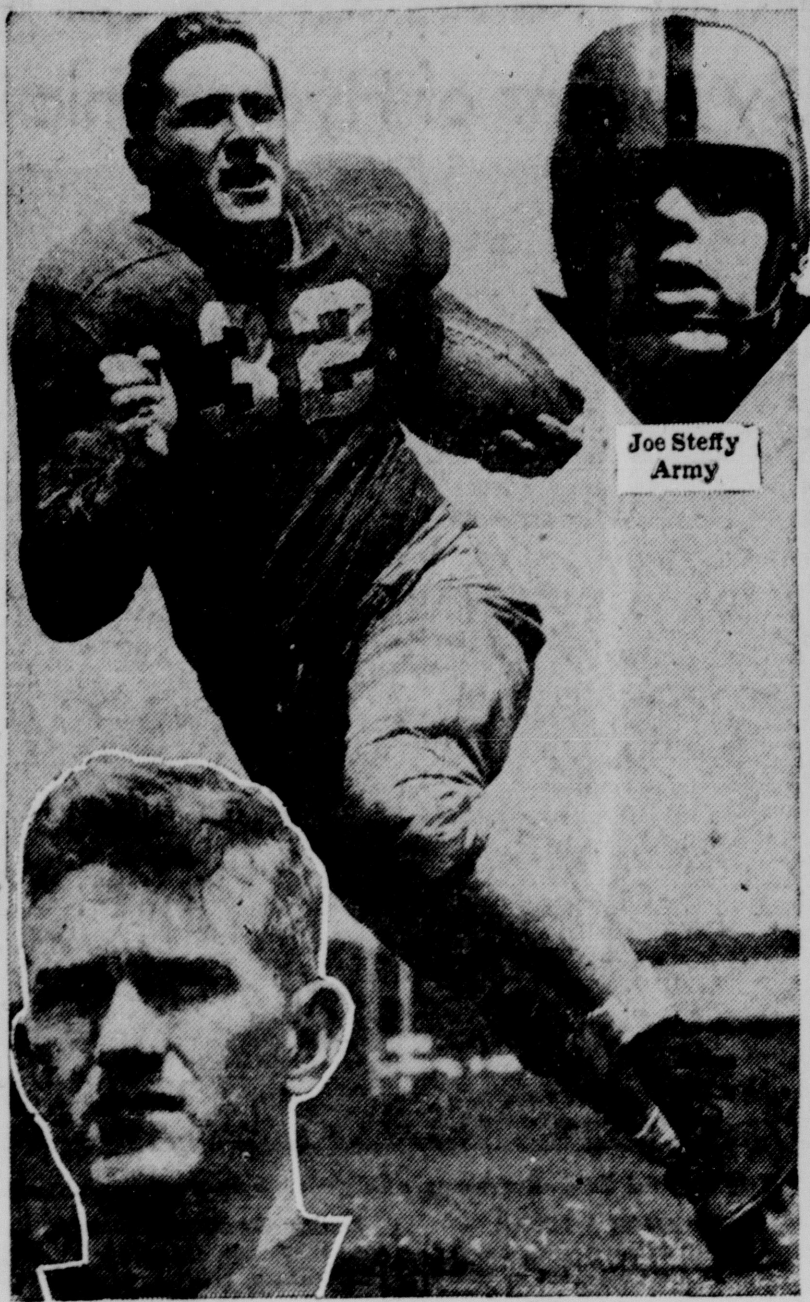

The petitions, which will be forwarded to the Cleveland baseball officials, followed reports that Indians' president Bill Veeck was considering a trade involving Boudreau and several St. Louis Browns players.

Meanwhile, Cleveland fans awaited the final decision of Veeck, who has been sounding out public opinion on the proposed deal.

FESLER JUGGLES BUCK LINEUP TO FACE CALIFORNIA

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 8.—The way coach Wes Fesler has been juggling personnel, it's anybody's guess who will start for Ohio State's Bucks against Southern California Saturday.

After the Bucks lost to Purdue, 24 to 20, last weekend, Fesler said he planned no important personnel changes. Since then, however, repeated study of pictures of that game have convinced him some switches might aid the weak defense.

In a scrimmage with the freshmen yesterday, the Bucks had Jim Hague and Dick Shannon at ends in place of Curly Morrison and Dave Bonnie, Howard Duncan replacing Jack Lininger at center and Ray Di Piero at Captain Bob Jabbusch's guard.

Jabbusch was kicked in the side during the scrimmage and retired early.

Dean Sensenbaurer didn't take part in the drill, although his ailing ankle is expected to be well enough for him to play Saturday.

Fesler is also counting on Bob Brugge for the first time all season. Brugge worked at halfback with the second team in yesterday's scrimmage and apparently is recovered from his leg injury.

The Bucks also expect to have Rod Swinehart, their best defensive quarterback, ready again. Halfback Bob Demmel is the only uncertain quantity.

LEAVES SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Ossie Bluege took over today as head of the Washington Senators farm system, leaving the post as manager of the club.

The late David Warfield, famous American actor, was born in San Francisco, and his first connection with the theater was as an usher. He was discovered by David Belasco who starred him in "The Auctioneer," in which he played 1,400 times. One of his best-known roles was that of Anton von Barwig in "The Music Master."

CO-CAPTAIN of the University of Texas football team, Max Bumgardner has proven adept at snagging those passes from his post at left end on the Longhorn varsity. (International)

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The brawl for top individual performance ratings in Western Conference football doings began again today, and the faces were familiar.

There were, to begin with, Perry Moss of Illinois, leading the pack in passing and total offense at this early stage; Lou Mihajlovich of Indiana, who last year topped the loop in pass receiving, in front in that phase once more; and Indiana half-back George Taliaferro, back after a year's absence and running second in total offense.

Clarence Self of Wisconsin leads in rushing with an average of 93 yards per haul, although Purdue's Harry Szulborski leads in total yardage gained rushing with 180.

Duke Eddleman of Illinois is the punting genius of the conference at this particular point.

All this, of course, is subject to rapid and violent change, since three teams—Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan—have yet to meet a conference foe. Michigan in particular, with dynamic Bob Chapuis, last year's total-offense leader, at the controls, may wrap up the statistics department and put same in its pocket before the season is played out.

'KEEP BOUDREAU' CLEVELAND FANS PETITION VEECK

CLEVELAND, Oct. 8.—"Keep Boudreau" petitions appeared today on Cleveland's Euclid avenue where Indians' fans who wish to keep the shortstop-manager can put their desires in writing.

Max R. Friedman, Cleveland auto dealer, said he has five notebooks which he expects to fill with signatures under the heading: "We, the undersigned, request that Lou Boudreau should not be traded."

The petitions, which will be forwarded to the Cleveland baseball officials, followed reports that Indians' president Bill Veeck was considering a trade involving Boudreau and several St. Louis Browns' players.

Meanwhile, Cleveland fans awaited the final decision of Veeck, who has been sounding out public opinion on the proposed deal.

FESLER JUGGLES BUCK LINEUP TO FACE CALIFORNIA

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 8.—The way coach Wes Fesler has been juggling personnel, it's anybody's guess who will start for Ohio State's Bucks against Southern California Saturday.

After the Bucks lost to Purdue, 24 to 20, last weekend, Fesler said he planned no important personnel changes. Since then, however, repeated study of pictures of that game have convinced him some switches might aid the weak defense.

In a scrimmage with the freshmen yesterday, the Bucks had Jim Hague and Dick Shannon at ends in place of Curly Morrison and Dave Bonnie. Howard Duncan replacing Jack Lininger at center and Ray Di Piero at Captain Bob Jabbusch's guard.

Jabbusch was kicked in the side during the scrimmage and retired early.

Dean Sensenbaurer didn't take part in the drill, although his ailing ankle is expected to be well enough for him to play Saturday.

Fesler is also counting on Bob Brugge for the first time all season. Brugge worked at halfback with the second team in yesterday's scrimmage and apparently is recovered from his leg injury.

The Bucks also expect to have Rod Swinehart, their best defensive quarterback, ready again. Halfback Bob Demmel is the only uncertain quantity.

LEAVES SENATORS
WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Ossie Bluege took over today as head of the Washington Senators farm system, leaving the post as manager of the club.

The late David Warfield, famous American actor, was born in San Francisco, and his first connection with the theater was as an usher. He was discovered by David Belasco who starred him in "The Auctioneer," in which he played 1,400 times. One of his best-known roles was that of Anton von Barwig in "The Music Master."

DiMAGGIO PLAYS WORLD SERIES WITH 'DEAD ARM'

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Joe DiMaggio, mainstay of the New York Yankees, played the 1947 season and World Series with his throwing arm so "dead" that opposing base runners might have run the Yankees right out of the pennant had they known.

The New York Daily Mirror revealed today that DiMaggio "fooled the game's smartest brains all season" by bluffing throws with what was once the mightiest arm in baseball.

The article said that poker face Joe "gave one of the most fantastic exhibitions of faking" and that his occasional long throws "almost floored him."

DiMaggio is suffering from bone chips in the elbow which may require an operation this winter unless the calcification dissolves.

The Yankee Clipper had been beset with injuries all year which would have forced a less courageous player to drop out of the lineup. Had Joe yielded to these ailments, the World Series flag might be flying over Brooklyn today.

Army Raises Crops on Desert Islands By Means of Hydroponic Farm Methods

HYDROPONIC BEDS—Harvesting cucumbers. Note overhead netting providing shade for tender plants.

By ALLAN J. FUNCH
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—From the dry and crusted soil of Iwo Jima and four other Pacific war sites the United States Army today is drawing fresh, green salad vegetables—thanks to the progress of scientific farming.

On the island where United States forces fought the Japs to a standstill, the Army has set up a hydroponic garden from which it expects to garner at least 63,000 pounds of vegetables this year.

Along with similar gardens in Japan, Atkinson Field in British Guiana, and Nanking, China, the Army will serve its officers and men overseas more than 3,555,000 pounds of fresh grown vegetables which otherwise would have been denied them.

A hydroponic garden is not something dreamed up by Robert L. Ripley, but by calculating agricultural scientists determined to make use of normally sub-marginal soil.

FARMERS' EYES would pop at sight of the truck gardens growing in beds of gravel, stones, cinders, or other inert materials, but the secret is not too complicated.

The gardens are supplied with chemically treated water bearing the nutrients necessary for plant growth. They are being maintained where transportation difficulties do not permit of shipping fresh vegetables and where lack of suitable soil, inadequate rainfall, or other difficulties preclude the growing of vegetables in the ground.

The two gardens in Japan—one of 55 acres at Chofu in the Tokyo area and another of 25 acres at Otsu in the Kyoto area—are believed to be the largest and most productive of their kind in the world.

Actually, the origin of hydroponics dates back to 1699, when crude experiments were conducted to determine which chemicals were necessary to plant life.

However, it was not until 1925 that interest developed in the possible use of the procedure for large-scale farming. In 1944 the hydroponic method came to the attention of Gen. H. H. Arnold, then commanding general of the Army Air Forces.

General Arnold ordered an installation set up on Ascension island, in the mid-Atlantic, in 1945 and the Army began to go in for hydroponics in a big way.

The standard Army main bed unit in a hydroponic garden consists of 10 gravity-fed beds of washed gravel, or other neutral aggregate in which the plants take root. Such materials as coarse gravel, crushed limestone, river or silica gravel, and volcanic cinders have been utilized successfully.

A 10-bed unit, consisting of 9,000 square feet, occupies about a half-acre of land. If the maximum utilization of maximum space is made, it is considered capable of feeding 400 men one salad a day.

BEDS, operated in groups of 10 for convenience, are irrigated in the following manner:

The highest elevated section is flooded first, the solution of water and chemical nutrient entering through the bottom of the bed from an above-ground tank and rising through the bed to cover the roots of the plants or to any level desired.

A valve between this section and the middle one remains closed until the desired level is reached. When the highest section has been sufficiently irrigated, the valve is opened and the solution drains into the middle section, where the process is repeated.

From the lowest section, the solution drains by a flume into a below-ground sump, from which it is pumped back into the above-ground tank, analyzed and replenished with water and additional chemicals prior to the next irrigation, usually the following day.

Without entering into the value of vegetables as genuine morale builders for the troops overseas, the Army issued the following comparison of the costs of hydroponics-produced and commercially-procured vegetables:

Tomatoes: hydroponics, 19 cents per pound; commercial, 16 cents.

Peppers: hydroponics, 22 cents; commercial, 7 cents.

Lettuce: hydroponics, 11 cents; commercial, 6 cents.

Radishes: hydroponics, 10 cents; commercial, 5 cents.

The garden yield at the end of the second year of operation, the Army reports, was nearly 11 times the total production of 323,000 pounds obtained in the first year of operation.

Actually, the origin of hydroponics dates back to 1699, when crude experiments were conducted to determine which chemicals were necessary to plant life.

A 10-bed unit, consisting of 9,000 square feet, occupies about a half-acre of land. If the maximum utilization of maximum space is made, it is considered capable of feeding 400 men one salad a day.

BEDS, operated in groups of 10 for convenience, are irrigated in the following manner:

The highest elevated section is flooded first, the solution of water and chemical nutrient entering through the bottom of the bed from an above-ground tank and rising through the bed to cover the roots of the plants or to any level desired.

A valve between this section and the middle one remains closed until the desired level is reached. When the highest section has been sufficiently irrigated, the valve is opened and the solution drains into the middle section, where the process is repeated.

From the lowest section, the solution drains by a flume into a below-ground sump, from which it is pumped back into the above-ground tank, analyzed and replenished with water and additional chemicals prior to the next irrigation, usually the following day.

Penny Singleton, title star on "Blondie," Sundays over CBS, believes that women of America will be able to cope with the current high food costs and other prices and force them to reasonable levels without government controls. "Get us women mad enough," she says, "and we'll do something about it."

The "something" she refers to includes the use of meat substitute dishes, butter substitutes, and other devices to make luxury-priced commodities go begging on the market.

"The wife," says Blondie, "is the boss of the kitchen and has to use her own head to make the post-war dollar stretch to meet the budget, and wives are pretty clever when it comes to that."

Amos was explaining to Andy the difference between professional politicians and other people. "Most people," said Amos, "make up their bed and lie in it. A politician makes up his bunk and lies out of it."

Cast of NBC's Tuesday night "Amos 'n' Andy" show has welcomed the return of Jim Baskette, famed as "Gabby Gibson" in the double-A series. He was forced by illness to leave the show in mid-season last year, but is now well on the road to complete recovery.

Lassie, the famed radio and movie canine star, has finished shooting location scenes at Sonoma, Calif., for her latest MGM film, "Hills of Home." Rudd Weatherwax, Lassie's owner, revealed at the dog's Sunday ABC radio show that Lassie had a two-days' bout with pneumonia at Sonoma.

Tony Martin, CBS Sunday show headliner, was a surprise guest star at the first annual Remuda at famed Malibu Beach last week. He appeared at the fete upon request of Jimmy Wallington, announcer of Tony's radio comedy show and co-chairman of the beach celebration.

And telephone booths will never replace the broadcasting studio.

"Here's what I mean," the scholarly looking commentator said. "The news coming from Europe gives us a good picture of what's happening there. But what does it mean to the people if they don't understand how events in Yugoslavia, for instance, will affect them in America? That's the failure."

Taylor journeyed by car through England, France, Italy, Greece, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Germany, broadcasting his regular Monday and Friday programs ("Your Land and Mine," from various points along the way.

He had a particular purpose in driving through Europe... to examine the sands of the "desert of despair." His observation was that conditions on the continent are not as desperate as we've been led to believe.

"My impression is that Europeans are living better than we have any idea," but he hastily added that neither are the Europeans feeding on milk and honey or clothing themselves in satins and laces.

His conclusion is "there is enough actual need to require aid."

Radio broadcasting in the continental countries is staggering along, Mr. Taylor reported, with ill-suited equipment and a lack of organization. "Broadcasting is in a very elementary stage, about on a par with out television programming in the United States. You might turn on Radio France and hear a woman singing for an hour. When she gets tired, she stops and somebody else starts."

One of the chief reasons for this lack of development, Broadcaster Taylor is convinced, is the government control of radio. The microphone in the hands of the political administrators is used largely for propaganda and police purposes.

No episode in his odyssey left Commentator Taylor with a greater belief in American institutions than his broadcast from a telephone booth. It happened on the way home aboard ship, just off the coast of Ireland. The only microphone on board broke down, and the only alternative to a cold swim in the Atlantic was the telephone receiver in the usual corner drugstore-sized cubicle.

Biggest break that Alan Young ever got, he says, was getting fired from a job he liked! No, in this case he is not being funny—the young Canadian saves that for his regular stunts on the CBS Tony Martin Show.

The job was his first in radio. He was eighteen (this was "way back in 1938") and had wangled a position with a Vancouver, B. C., radio station. He wrote a half-hour variety show, acted in two plays a week, served as assistant news editor, filled in as announcer and took an occasional turn as front office stenographer—for which formidable versatility he got $15.00 a week. When a couple of fan letters trickled in, Young stormed the front office flourishing them, and demanding a raise. The station manager fired him.

Young regards his dismissal as the big break of his career, explaining: "If I got the raise I might be there yet."

PARADE TO BE BIG ATTRACTION OF CELEBRATION

Poster Contest Scheduled For All Boys And Girls Below Seventh Grade

Hundreds of boys and girls and adults from Circleville and Pickaway county will take part in a colorful Halloween parade in Circleville the night of Oct. 31.

In making this announcement, Wednesday, Don C. Henkle, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the annual event, said the board of directors and members of the parade committee mapped plans for the Halloween celebration at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon following a luncheon at the Betz Restaurant.

The Chamber of Commerce is also the sponsor of a poster contest in connection with the Halloween program. It was also announced that the Red Men's lodge will participate in the Halloween parade.

The parade will form in front of the postoffice and will move at 7:30 o'clock. The line of march will be on Court street north to the Ted Lewis Park where the judging will take place and the prizes will be awarded. Following this the Red Men's lodge will present its ritual with members in full regalia and with visiting Red Men from nearby cities participating.

HENKLE SAID the Chamber of Commerce has appropriated $200 which is to be distributed as awards for the best costumes in the parade.

The parade committee is composed of: Mr. Henkle, chairman; R. C. Kiefer, Arthur Marr, James I. Yost, Milton Kellstadt, George Griffith, Frank Susa, George Fishpaw and Vernon Hawkes.
